The Time to Choose Gifts Is While Other People Are Thinking About It

"It Is Better to Give Away the Wool Than the Sheep" said an old shepherd, "for I will sooner or later have another crop of wool on my sheep's back." Better take the losses on old stocks, unwanted fashions or overloads of stored-up lots which seemed to be cheap when laid in. We really cleaned up our stocks last summer, with two or three exceptions, which have largely sold out since, and we are in fine shape to take in everything that comes along and turn it over to our valued patrons, at newly lowered figures.

$32.50 and $38.50 Half a dozen styles, carried out in navy, wine color, taupe, brown and black-lovely wintry shades, all of them. One style is embroidered, one scattered with tassels, one is severely simple, and so on.

Prices, $32.50 and $38.50. (First Floor, Central)

The Earlier the Better in Buying Gift Silks

Everybody knows that prices have come down tremendously, but not everybody may know that many of the good silks we are selling at these new prices can't be replaced, except at a higher cost. That means that really wonderful values are here right now; that the assortment is far better than it will be later, and that people who want the best in silks they can get will find it here at the present time. Plain colored silks White silks Georgette crepes Printed silks Velvets Tub silks Prices begin as low as $1.25 a yard and go with very many gradations up to $15 a yard. And every silk intended for a gift will be put in a box upon request. (First Floor, Chestnut)

Winter Frocks of Cloth and Satin for Young Women

For general daytime wear a girl finds few dresses more satisfactory than those of wool tricotine or serge. They are warm, they are comfortable and becoming, too. The Young Women's Salons have an excellent collection of just such dresses. They are chiefly in dark blue, some are embroidered, some braided and some trimmed with brighter colors, but they are always in good taste, the styles are smart and they are not expensive-$23.50 to $110.

For better wear there are satin and charmeuse dresses and few of lustrous crepe de chine. In blue, the fashionable brown or plain black, they are handsomely embroidered, trimmed with pleatings or made in simpler styles if you wish. Necks are round and sleeves short, usually, there are wide and narrow sashes and prices are $25, $35, $42.50 and $48. 14 to 20 years sizes.

WANAMAKER FURNITURE The Great Home-Gift ·Here is one gift that bears the stamp of genuineness.

There is something so real about it that it is particularly in favor among people who want to feel satisfied in their own minds that they have given a gift of real excellence and substantial worth—a gift that satisfies. Wanamaker furniture satisfies. That is an old story, but around this time of gift-buying it is especially to be kept in mind. Wanamaker furniture satisfies the one who gives it no less than the one who receives it. There's a world of satisfaction in knowing that you have given something of real worth, of real excellence, beauty and serviceableness, because all these things mean satisfaction to the one who receives it. For the home, for anybody who can use it, Wanamaker furniture is the gift that

And what a world of it there is here—thousands and thousands of pieces, novel, ingenious, practical, rich, elaborate, unique.

The littlest pieces are book-holders, footstools, trays and mirrors. The largest are the great easy chairs and davenports and marvelous chifforobes for men and women.

The multitude of things in between are a delight to see and to select from. (Fifth and Sixth Floors)
